

Privacy Policy

SECUSRVR is in a bit of a situation and we currently have no privacy policy up to Australian Standards under new laws. A new four letter agency OAIC (Office for the Information Commissioner) has a guide to make a privacy policy for bigger businesses and nobody thought about a tiny business. I have contacted the OAIC and hopefully they might provide assistance.

I have always respected customers privacy out of honour and integrity from my own heart. We will have a privacy policy as soon as I figure it out by myself. I am not hiring a lawyer as it will run me bankrupt.

If you are reading this and like these privacy laws because you dissociatively click buttons giving your data to them to find out what Disney princess you are, you have killed my business the same way they killed Socrates in ancient Greece. I may just leave Australia and shred my passport and renounce of my citizenship and live in the world's last stand for freedom: Hong Kong.

Only I can't afford that either... yet.

Our hard disks are encrypted and our users are protected by SELinux, and I swear by my life and my love of it I will not live for the sake of another man, and nor should another man live for the sake of my life. I have no desire whatsoever to profit from your information, as proven by our lack of a requirement for an Australian Business Number because of low quarterly earnings. This is a hobby business, and the government just banned my lemonade stand.

Vote #1 Liberal Democrats